

Bring Community to Volunteerism

The Ralph Thornton Centre thrives because of its volunteers. Every year, over 200 volunteers bring our building to life! They run numerous meaningful programs for children, youth and adults that enhance and change lives.

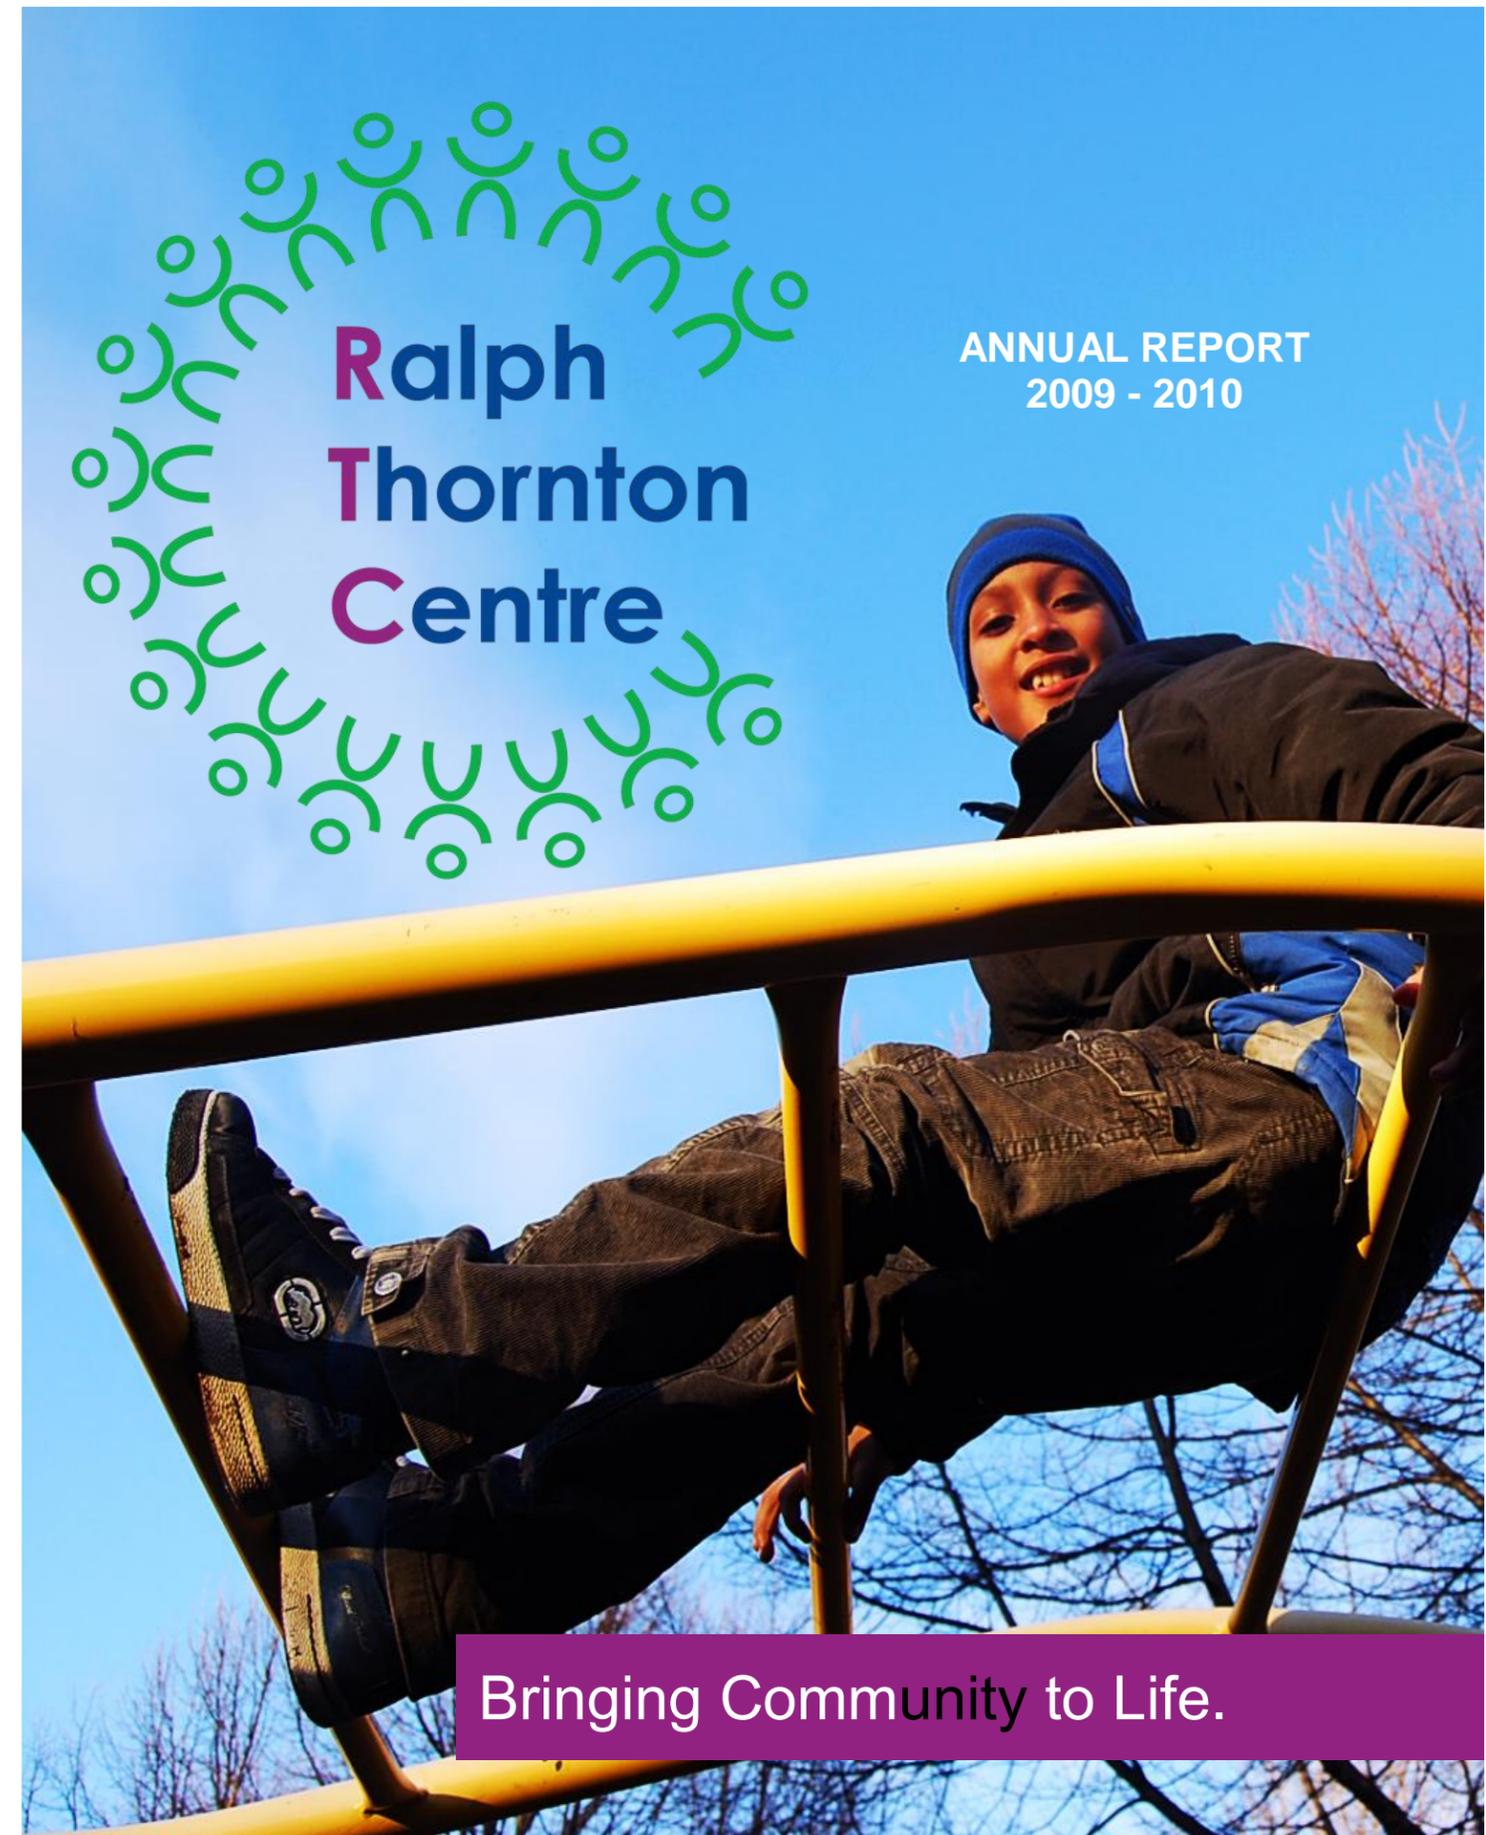

Our volunteers are leaders and partners who build community, optimism and confidence. Shouldn't you become a Ralph Thornton Centre Volunteer today?

DEAR FRIENDS...

One of the challenges of a neighbourhood centre such as the Ralph Thornton Centre is to meet the needs of a rapidly changing community. How can RTC respond to evolving needs in the local community without excluding people or diluting services and its commitment to the vulnerable? And how can RTC play a role in creating systemic change for the good of all residents?

In 2009/2010, the Board of RTC, staff, and volunteers wrestled with these questions and developed a clearer vision of our work and our place as a "connector" and facilitator of change in South Riverdale. With several lively new members our Board of Directors also developed an active committee structure. Our marketing group helped us create a new "brand" and an exciting new website. "Bringing Community to Life" is our new tagline that nicely captures what we do.

While continuing to provide services and space for wide variety of residents RTC expanded into new areas. In late 2009, RTC was chosen to be featured on the Neighbourhood Arts Network as one of five exemplary community engaged hubs in Toronto from which others can learn. RTC is profiled on the Network's online resource for other arts groups: www.neighbourhoodartsnetwork.org

Food – growing it, procuring it locally, preparing and sharing it – is another new focus that emerged strongly in the past year. At a broader level the most ambitious project we started recently is the Rivertowne community development project in the former Don Mount Court. Unique in Canada this two-year project is creating the conditions and structures for homeowners, TCHC tenants, and condo owners to create a healthy mixed income community.

We want to thank our energetic and committed staff and volunteers and the new donors and community members who have made the past year an exciting and visionary one. As you turn the pages of this report you will come to know more about the many efforts and great successes of our staff, volunteers and supporters. They – and you – are the people who are BRINGING COMMUNITY TO LIFE in South Riverdale.

Sincerely,

Trish Hunt, Board Chair

Sincerely,

Shawn Conway, Executive Director

BRINGING COMMUNITY TO CHILDREN

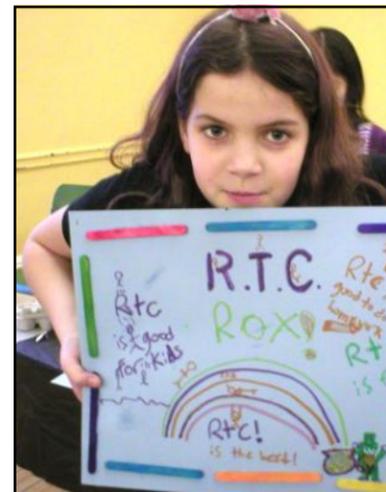

AFTER-SCHOOL PROGRAMS

The Ralph Thornton Centre runs safe, unique and engaging after-school programs which serve surrounding lower-income communities, newcomer children and students from 6 public schools in South Riverdale. Using trained volunteers, we run inclusive homework help sessions and cultural adaption programs on a daily basis through the Mentorship Program and the Homework Club.

The Mentorship Program assists elementary school children from the immigrant Chinese community in cultural adaption and in developing their English language skills. Students learn new skills and build new friendships. Parents are regularly invited to participate through informational workshops

In our daily work with children we also inject themes related to the environment, the local community, personal identity and nutrition. Activities such as sports, art and cooking enable children to learn and grow, to have fun, and to develop their imaginations and a sense of wonder.

Our mission is to engage children in peer support and healthy choices to cultivate self-confidence in their studies and social lives. Our students eventually go on to become vital members of this community and community leaders themselves.

RIVERDALE ACTION CENTRE SUMMER CAMP

RAC Camp is an 8-week recreational program in the summer for children ages 3 to 12. Co-sponsored with Jimmie Simpson Recreation Centre and Woodgreen, the camp is free and is in high demand. Activities include arts and crafts, sports, recreational games, field trips, swim time.

BRINGING COMMUNITY TO A SPACE

RIVERDALE COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT INSTITUTE

RCDI is our unique model that annually links post-secondary placement students with community development initiatives in South Riverdale. Students come from a range of disciplines including Social Work, Community Work, Nursing and Environmental Studies. Students contributed over 3000 hours of work in the past year. Here's what they've accomplished:

- Developed and implemented a survey on food access
- Supported food and environmental education activities and events, including Earth Day, cooking on a budget workshops, community kitchen programs
- Began a weekly Hub Café drop-in that brought socially isolated community members together
- Helped lead annual door-to-door community survey
- Brought environmental and health promotion activities to our mentor children 's program.
- Rolled out the RTC Green Plan to make us more eco-friendly in our office practices
- Organized a community survey and a series of child and youth activities, community BBQ's and sports events in the newly revitalized Rivertowne TCH development

LEWIS PEARSALL COMPUTER RESOURCE CENTRE

In 2009 – 2010, the LPCRC continued to help support unemployed and underemployed participants gain job search skills, access community resources and obtain jobs. Supported by Employment Ontario the Centre served over 400 new participants to better the quality of their lives.

"The Ralph Thornton Centre is a very supportive environment. It's worth taking the bus or walking here to know that I will be treated with dignity and respect."

- CRC Participant

SPACE RENTAL

The Ralph Thornton Centre was established by Toronto City Council in 1980 as a "multi-purpose community facility" within the former Postal Station G. This building is here for you and our neighbours to use and enjoy in various ways - from belly dancing to yoga to community meetings to community organizing to special celebrations. We make space available so that the community can be more self-sufficient. People do not need to rely on RTC to develop a program; community members can simply use our space to host the activities that are most meaningful to them. We believe this empowers our neighbours and builds a strong, vibrant and active community.

As our Mission states, RTC is a place where neighbours meet, enjoy programs, exchange support and celebrate special events.

BRINGING COMMUNITY TO THE ARTS

The Ralph Thornton Centre has been designated as a community arts hub in Toronto. We use art to grow individuals, build community and beautify our neighbourhood. Art allows people to tap into their emotions and express themselves in ways that day-to-day communication often does not. Projects such as Photovoice and the mural project introduce people to advocacy and help participants learn how to effect change.

By working together on large scale projects like murals we are teaching youth about team work and collaboration, not just with each other but with their community as they need to consider their fellow neighbours when creating art for all to appreciate.

We find art to be a crucial educational tool that can teach anything from what is community development to how to mentor children to fill a blank space.

No matter the lesson, the end result is community members who have something they can take pride in.

BRINGING COMMUNITY TO THE TABLE

Food is a staple of life. Some of our community members don't always have the resources to bring healthy and nutritious food into their lives. In 2009 we surveyed over 60 community members regarding their challenges with food access.

Some of the many barriers identified included low-income issues, inaccessibility, non-existent venues for fresh food, illness and a lack of knowledge of healthy cooking.

As a result we began to incorporate a food focus in several areas of RTC work. Here's what was cookin' at RTC in 2009-2010:

THE RIVERDALE FOOD WORKING GROUP is a collaboration of community members and local community organizations, including RTC. The group provided:

- Food education workshops on "eating on a budget," container gardening and canning
- Local fruit tree picking sessions with Not Far From the Tree
- A seedling giveaway on Earth Day
- Food vouchers to about 40 low-income families to use at the local Withrow Farmers' Market

THE TALKING SPOON PROGRAM, in partnership with Toronto Employment and Social Services, brings single parents on Social Assistance together to:

- Learn how to prepare healthy, affordable meals with a local chef
- Connect with community resources, food related employment and training opportunities

At the monthly COMMUNITY KITCHEN HUB PROGRAM, community members meet to:

- Prepare and share a healthy meal on a budget
- Learn new cooking skills and meet new people

BRINGING COMMUNITY TOGETHER IN RIVERTOWNE

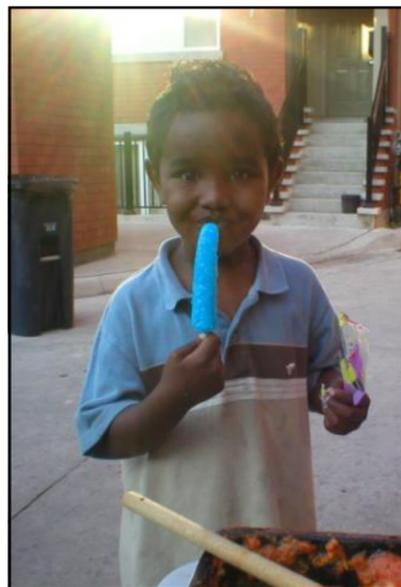

THE RIVERTOWNE PROJECT

RTC's "Rivertowne Community Development Project" poses an important question: Can community development be successful and sustainable in a complex, mixed-income setting, where the public housing tenants have a history of struggles and barriers? So far, the answer appears to be yes... if relationship building, creativity, inclusivity and tenant-led social infrastructure development are at the core of the community development approach.

RTC took on this exciting challenge in 2009 and, over the next two years, will focus considerable energy into Rivertowne on the site of the former Don Mount Toronto Community Housing (TCHC) complex, one of the city's oldest downtown communities.

In collaboration with a broad base of Rivertowne residents, the following took place:

- A needs assessment with over 60 rivertowne residents
- A planning retreat resulting in indicators of success, a steering committee called The Navigators and several action teams (Environment, Safety & Crime Prevention, Seniors, Youth and Jobs/Training)
- A song-writing workshop with professional composer James Gordon, resulting in the collaborative creation of "The Rivertowne Song"
- Skills and relationship building programs such as graphic design, dance, music and cooking
- A community cleanup, with participation from tenants, home owners and condo owners
- The birth of a newsletter for Rivertowne, edited by a TCHC tenant
- A chocolate Fountain Welcoming party for new condo owners
- A partnership with TCHC and the city to develop a community consultation process regarding the design of the new Joel Weeks Park

Funding was received from TCHC's Social Investment Fund and the Metcalf Foundation and a community development specialist, Dale Hamilton, was hired in October 2009 as coordinator. Dale is working in collaboration with the Riverdale Community Development Institute's Joanne Fisher and a number of university placement and summer students.

Today, Rivertowne is a vibrant, ever-changing community-in-the-making, with phased move-in dates for TCHC tenants and condo owners. The concept is one of a neighbourhood where social housing is melded with market-rate privately owned condominiums.

The Rivertowne Project has taken on a high profile across the city and beyond and it is recognized as the first time in Canada that a mixed-income neighbourhood has been deliberately created and consciously supported.

Consequently, it has captured the imagination of the media, politicians and academics, and is being seen as a model for new approaches to diverse mixed socio-economic urban living.
